JUROR

A Charlottesville native, Julia (Julie) May holds both a Master's and Ph.D. in art history from Virginia Commonwealth University. While her doctoral dissertation focused on the art of small-scale indigenous cultures in the Four Corner's region of the US, her recent research, curatorial work and teaching reaches across time and cultures. For 10 years she was on the faculty at Earlham College in Richmond, Indiana, and now is on the faculty of the School of Continuing and Professional Studies at the University of Virginia. She has delivered papers on her work on 19th century Quaker artist Marcus Mote, contributed an introductory essay on 19th century Indiana landscape painting to the book, The Richmond Group Artists, (Indiana University Press, 2014) developed a host of exhibitions including those on African art, Chinese and Japanese scroll paintings, and indigenous Australian art. In addition, she has published a number of book reviews and has served as a judge for art exhibitions in Indiana and Ohio.
